

YOUR IMPACT IN BURUNDI

DONATION IMPACT REPORT

- Emergency food relief
- Agricultural training
- Education on Gender-Based Violence

Low agricultural production, restricted movement, and increased food prices in places like Burundi has affected many families, particularly female-headed households.

People have had great difficulty in re-establishing themselves, and many have been unable to access credit or reclaim lost land.

It is vital that we address the root causes of poverty, so that these people can become more resilient to future emergencies.

Your response was fast and generous!

Thanks to your support, emergency food has been delivered to those in need, relieving them of this burden so that they can focus on rebuilding their lives and their livelihoods.

Our partners are also training people in agricultural techniques and production methods, and are providing tools and equipment, helping households to become highly productive and resilient to climate change in the future. Families are being organized into Village Savings & Loan Associations and Farmer Associations to help them market produce, access credit/loans and work co-operatively.

Additionally, we have been able to provide education on Gender-Based Violence, improving the safety and welfare of women and girls returning to Burundi at a time of great insecurity and hardship.

These are vital steps towards addressing the deeper causes of poverty and supporting the people of Burundi as they move towards sustainability. On behalf of our partners and everyone at Canadian Lutheran World Relief, thank you.
