Rebekah Hagan

was raised in a Christian home where abortion was never discussed. She became pregnant at seventeen with her son, Eli, and again with a second child while in her first year of college.

Feeling ashamed and fearing that she would lose her family's support and need to drop out of school, Rebekah thought raising two children alone would be impossible. At just over seven weeks pregnant, she began a chemical/medication abortion that would change her life.

Minutes after leaving the facility, she experienced a radical change of heart and turned to the internet to search for a way out. Determined to reverse her mistake, Rebekah underwent what most thought would be an impossible attempt to save her baby.
