Sandra's Journey

Sandra (left) and Sarah, our Kenya Program Partner.

Sandra with her family and Sarah during a recent visit.

Sandra, from Kenya, has von Willebrand disease.

Her life has not been easy, but 17-year-old Sandra is thankful to Save One Life for holding her hand through the journey, including the passing of her mom.

During the pandemic, the markets near her home closed, and all income needed to provide the basics necessities for the family came from Sandra's Save One Life sponsorship funds.

After high school, Sandra wants to study medicine and become a doctor so that she can make contributions to research and treatments of bleeding disorders.

The family is grateful for the financial support through Sandra's sponsorship and for Save One Life making treatment available for whenever Sandra needs it.

You can improve the quality of life and future for a person with a bleeding disorder in a developing country.
