

OneVoice "Buzz"

*Caring for people with bleeding disorders in developing countries
one at a time*

February 2019

Dear friends,

We hope you will enjoy this brief update "Buzz" from Save One Life. We have so much exciting news to share that we can't wait until next month's edition of our OneVoice. Enjoy and, as always, thank you for your support.

Project SHARE Now a Program of Save One Life

Save One Life is excited to announce that Project SHARE, a factor donation program established by Laurie Kelley and operated by LA Kelley Communications, is now one of our programs!

Project SHARE is a humanitarian program that donates factor to patients and clinics in developing countries. Since 2002, SHARE has donated more than 140 million IU — approximately $140 million worth — of factor to thousands of patients in 77 developing countries! It has saved lives and enabled people with bleeding disorders to attend school, have operations and work again.

SHARE's mission fits perfectly with the humanitarian work here at Save One Life. We are excited to bring even more care to our community in need overseas.

Do you have unused or unwanted factor? Send it to us!

In partnership with the NYC Hemophilia Chapter and Octapharma, we are thrilled to show Bombardier Blood to a theater audience in Times Square.

We need your help! Do you have an item you would like to donate for our auction at this movie screening?

Some items we are in need of are:

- theater, concert or sporting event tickets
- frequent flier miles
- vacation rentals
- unique artwork or jewelry

We welcome donations of any size and hope you will help contribute to this exciting event to help raise funds for our important programs.

If you would like to join us, or have an item to donate, please e-mail Jodi Weeks.

Announcing Wheels for the World: Lost on the Tour Divide!

Barry Haarde became the first person with hemophilia, HIV and hepatitis C to ride from coast-to-coast. That initial journey was named Wheels for the World and was the first of six amazing rides completed by the Texas native. Sadly, Barry passed away unexpectedly last year.

His legacy continues with Wheels for the World: Lost on the Tour Divide! Chris Seistrup, a cyclist with hemophilia B, will honor Barry's memory by raising money to support Save One Life while racing across the country. Starting in Banff, Canada, Chris will join the Tour Divide and race to Antelope Wells, New Mexico, along the continental divide trail!

In support of Chris, and in memory of Barry, Save One Life will host a local bike ride on June 23. Please join us!
