A Bee Farm in Kenya

David from Kenya, the father of two sons with hemophilia A, created a bee farm with the help of a Save One Life Micro-Enterprise Grant. He will collect and sell honey, beeswax and propolis at the local food market.

The construction of the beehives was recently completed. David will soon plant sunflowers to attract bees to his hives once the current dry weather ends.

As small-scale farmers, David and his family welcome the opportunity to add these beehives to their farm. Harvesting and selling honey will supplement their income and help the family improve their living standards.

With their son Brian now in college studying medicine and their son Allan in high school, the additional income will help cover school expenses.

David is grateful to Save One Life for the Micro-Enterprise Grant because this new source of income will ease his financial burden.
