OneVoice

September 2020

Dear friends,

Welcome to this edition of OneVoice! We've changed the format slightly to make it more mobile-friendly and shortened the content to make it easier to read.

This edition highlights two fundraisers which collectively raised over $83,000 for our mission. Through our programs we directly provide people with bleeding disorders in developing countries the resources they need to lead independent and healthy lives. We are incredibly appreciative of the overwhelming support for our 2020 Wheels for the World and William Addison's hike on the Appalachian Trail. To all of you who participated, donated or shared the information - thank you!

A Virtual Event

September 2020

Thanks to our corporate sponsors, riders and all who fundraised, this virtual event raised over $58,000! People rode indoors, on the road and in the woods; from Germany, the UK, Florida, Alaska, California and more. Over 27 cyclists raised more than $250. Four raised over $1,000!

Wheels for the World started in 2012 when Barry Haarde inspired individuals with and without bleeding disorders by cycling across the country six times. After he passed away suddenly in 2018, this community ride was formed to continue Barry's contribution to Save One Life and to encourage healthy and active living.

Look for information early next year for this September 2021 event!

William Addison - South Bound on the Appalachian Trail

William continues to put one boot in front of the other and is on day 116 of his hike!

His original fundraising goal was $2,200. That goal was quickly reached, and he then set his sights on $11,000. Another goal crushed! It was agreed to raise the goal one more time to $22,000. We are thrilled to announce that William has raised $25,000!

He is less than 200 miles away from Springer Mountain in Georgia - the end of the Appalachian Trail!

Join us in wishing William a safe end to his hike and a happy return to Maine.

Apply to Become an Ambassador!

Save One Life has been helping people with bleeding disorders in developing countries for 20 years. Our programs have grown and we are extremely proud of this progress.

Through our new program we invite the US community to advocate for Save One Life in their local community and raise awareness about the drastic disparity in care for the bleeding disorder community in developing countries.

Save One Life Ambassadors will:

- Advocate in their local community
- Engage and enlighten people by giving presentations about our programs.
- Fundraise
- Attend virtual trainings

Applications are due by October 15.
