A message from Tim

As I read through this year's Gift Catalog, I am deeply moved by the stories of transformation that fill these pages. Each one is a powerful testament to the impact that our global family is making in some of the world's most vulnerable communities. Through your generosity, lives are being rescued, restored, and given a new purpose through the power of the Gospel.

This year's Gift Catalog is more than just a collection of items; it's a gateway to change. When you provide the tools for Catherine to start her own business, you're not just giving a gift—you're empowering a young woman to break free from the cycle of poverty and abuse. When you support our anti-trafficking efforts in Malawi, you're not just donating money—you're giving Caroline and others like her a second chance at life, free from fear and exploitation.

One of the stories that particularly touched my heart is that of Annet and her baby, Promise. Their journey from despair to hope is a reminder of the power of community and the difference that even one act of kindness can make. Thanks to the support of donors like you, two generations were rescued and are now thriving, with Annet becoming a beacon of hope for other young mothers.

In this catalog, you'll find opportunities to be a part of these stories of transformation. Whether it's providing a start-up loan, supporting prenatal care for a vulnerable mother, or rescuing a child from bonded labor, each gift you choose to give has the potential to change a life forever as we work together to demonstrate the love of God to those in need.

As you turn these pages, I encourage you to consider how you and your family can make a lasting impact. Together, we are not just meeting immediate needs; we are investing in futures. We are offering hope, dignity, and the chance for a new beginning.

Thank you for being a part of the Impact Nations family. Your commitment to justice, mercy, and hope is making a difference in the lives of thousands. Together, we are bringing hope where it was once unimaginable.

With gratitude and anticipation,

Tim Stewart

Chief Executive Officer

Meet Catherine

Uganda - Catherine had always dreamed of owning her own business. However, her dream became a distant memory when she was separated from her parents at a young age and left in the care of her stepmother. Despite a chronic lung problem, Catherine was forced to work long hours at multiple jobs, with every shilling she earned being taken by her stepmother to support the rest of the family.

Her worst job was working late every night at a bar, where she faced inappropriate advances from men and felt trapped in a cycle of abuse. Overshadowed by sorrow and darkness, Catherine found herself on the brink of prostitution. That's when everything changed.

One day, a friend invited her to a graduation ceremony at Elevate, our high-tech vocational school. There, she saw peers her age celebrating their achievements and securing employment. Inspired, she decided to enroll in the graphic design course.

While studying, she opened a student account with our partner bank and saved diligently. Upon graduating, she was provided with a low-interest loan and purchased her own computer, immediately launching her freelancing career.

Today, Catherine boasts a portfolio of local and international clients. She remains committed to giving back and is now using her skills to run the media department at her community church. Additionally, she trains other young girls, empowering them to pursue careers in graphic design.

Catherine's journey from hardship to empowerment through the Elevate program is a testament to the transformative power of education and support. Her story inspires many and showcases the profound impact of education that leads to a sustainable career.

Impact Nations has trained thousands of young men and women just like Catherine, providing them with the skills that they need to overcome crippling poverty. You can be a part of their story. YOU can help someone gain marketable skills and start a career.

Meet Caroline

Malawi - In the fight against human trafficking, we are literally stopping it in its tracks. In the border towns of Malawi, twenty highly trained individuals work tirelessly to identify and intercept traffickers, bringing them to justice while ensuring the safety of their victims.

One of those girls is 19-year-old Caroline and her 18-month-old baby. Abandoned by her husband and desperate to care for her infant, Caroline was vulnerable and seeking any opportunity to provide for her family. When a stranger promised her a job as a housekeeper in a city 96 kilometers away, she felt she had no choice but to accept.

But upon arrival, Caroline quickly realized there was no housekeeping job waiting for her. Instead, she was trapped in a trafficking ring, facing daily abuse and exploitation. For 11 long months, she endured unimaginable suffering, losing hope with each passing day.

Everything changed when one of our partner teams in the city recognized the signs of trafficking. They intervened and brought Caroline to safety, offering her a lifeline. They introduced her to our safehouse and sewing school program, where she could rebuild her life free from fear. For the first time in almost a year, Caroline dared to believe that freedom was possible.

Today, Caroline is living at the women's shelter, attending sewing classes, and rediscovering joy. Her story is one of many, and with the support of compassionate donors, we can continue rescuing others from the horrors of human trafficking.

In addition to rescuing 209 victims this year, 13 traffickers have been prosecuted. Our work continues, driven by the vision of a world where no one must endure the atrocities of trafficking.

Meet Annet

Uganda - Annet, the courageous mother of baby Promise, has become a symbol of hope for the Impact Nations family. Many have continuously prayed for both Promise and Annet, and your support has truly made a difference.

At just 16, Annet sought refuge in one of our shelters after being assaulted by an unknown boy, leaving her pregnant and alone. Our team at The Princess Shelter provided emotional support and medical care throughout the pregnancy.

Promise was born with severe medical issues, requiring multiple surgeries to correct her limbs and internal organs. To access specialized hospitals and treatment facilities, Annet and Promise relocated to our facilities in Kampala, leaving behind their village and familiar surroundings.

Due to the extent of Promises' conditions, and the concern from the Covid-19 pandemic, both mom and baby had to be isolated from the rest of the community for months. During this time, Annet spent her days reading Bible stories to her baby, learning how to weave baskets and make beaded jewelry. This period, though challenging, strengthened their bond and Annet's determination to build a better future for her daughter.

In 2023, she was finally able to join her peers and begin studying tailoring at the School of Purpose. Her passion and talent quickly propelled her to the top of her class, and she graduated in December 2023. Annet's skills and dedication to the other girls was so impressive that she was retained and employed as the assistant teacher in the tailoring class at the Kampala campus. In her free time she loves spending time with her baby, friends and serving on the worship team.

Thanks to the prayers and support of the Impact Family, two generations were rescued, restored, and are now thriving!

Meet Rachel

Nepal - In a desperate bid to escape a life of abuse, 20-year-old Rachel grabbed her 3-year-old son and fled with a friend. Rachel's husband, from an arranged marriage, routinely allowed his friends to abuse her, even recording the encounters as a means to control her. Fearing for her life after overhearing their plans to kill her, she ran.

For three days, Rachel traveled by bus and on foot until she reached the city. Upon arrival, a compassionate police officer noticed her malnourished and terrified state and offered help. She was taken to a hospital and treated for her injuries. When discharged, with nowhere to go, Rachel felt hopeless.

Then she remembered the organization that had distributed water filters in her village, mentioning their dedication to helping women escape abuse. She asked to be taken to the House of Hope.

At the House of Hope, Rachel finally felt a sense of relief and safety. Although she initially battled a deep depression, refusing food and isolating herself, the staff and other residents continued to encourage her and pray over her.

One night, Rachel had a life-changing dream. In it, a man in white, radiating love and care, led her to a field of rice and milk, urging her to eat and reminding her of her immense value. She realized she had encountered Christ, filling her with newfound hope. Rachel began eating again, engaging with others, and became determined to find a job.

After skills training, she secured an internship at a prestigious salon in Kathmandu, under the mentorship of a renowned hairdresser. She is now saving to find a new home for her and her son, with the ultimate goal of opening her own salon to employ other House of Hope graduates.

Meet Leila

Uganda - At just 13 years old, Leila's life was already marred by suffering, but it took a turn for the worse when she fled a broken home in desperation. Alone and vulnerable, she arrived in the city searching for a way to survive.

With no money and no place to call home, Leila spent her nights sleeping under a bridge. One rainy night, disaster struck when a friend was swept away by the rising waters beneath her. Terrified, Leila sought refuge in a nearby slum where she became caught up in a life of drugs and prostitution. When Leila became pregnant at the hands of an abuser, she reached out to a village elder in desperation.

Underweight, dressed in rags, and suffering from severe malnutrition and substance abuse, she was on the brink of collapse. Recognizing the urgency of her situation, the elder referred Leila and her child to our Jewels of Honor women's shelter.

For six long years, Leila had endured unimaginable hardship. But the moment she arrived at the shelter, her life began to change. Enrolling in a hairdressing course at the School of Purpose, she started to regain her health as our team provided regular medical care. With unwavering determination, Leila committed herself to mastering her craft and overcoming her past.

Today, Leila is thriving. She owns her own salon, is in good health, and has successfully enrolled her child in school. With her eyes set on the future, she is now saving diligently to purchase a home—a true testament to her resilience and a hopeful new chapter for her family.

Seeds of Change

Malawi - In the villages of Malawi and Uganda, where food insecurity and malnutrition have long threatened lives, hope is taking root. Through the power of organic farming, families and entire communities are discovering a path out of poverty. The Thrive gardening method, emphasizing sustainable, high-yield practices, is transforming lives by producing nutritious food and fostering economic stability.

Earlier this year, Impact Nations and our partners brought life-changing knowledge to a village in Malawi. Over five intense days, local leaders immersed themselves in advanced gardening techniques that would soon revolutionize their community.

The most inspiring response came from a youth group, aged 15 to 25, who embraced the challenge with remarkable enthusiasm. "Thrive garden initiative has really encouraged us to take part in gardening. That's why after training, as a youth group we have started 26 vegetable garden beds," youth director Jeffrey Alfred proudly shared. For these young people, the garden is more than a plot of land—it's a lifeline for their community's most vulnerable.

The vegetables they grow not only nourish their bodies but also fuel their mission of compassion. Every market sale provides essential support to elderly grandmothers who are raising orphaned grandchildren. One of these grandmothers, Malita, cares for two young children with an unwavering strength that belies her years. "I am thanking these young people for their work to support my two grandchildren with school books and uniforms," Malita says, her eyes filled with gratitude.

For Malita and countless others like her, these gardens represent more than food; they symbolize a brighter future. Fresh vegetables mean healthier bodies, and the proceeds from sales mean that children like Malita's grandchildren can attend school with pride. These gardens are not just changing lives—they are weaving a stronger, more resilient community, one seed at a time.

“ Every market sale provides essential support. ”

While one-time food distribution may be urgently needed in emergency situations, Impact Nations is also committed to finding sustainable food solutions to provide ongoing sources of nutrition through high-yield organic gardens. YOU can help us feed an entire community each and every day.

Gifts of Health and Hope

Relief in Gaza

Sarah lived in Gaza with her husband and their two children. She spent her mornings teaching in the local school and her evenings caring for her family. Though from a Muslim background, Sarah's husband had come to place his faith in Christ. When he was diagnosed with cancer, he clung tightly to the truths and comfort the Bible had to offer.

When the war struck, Sarah's husband died because he could not access the medical care he desperately needed. Countless civilians, including Sarah and her children, lost their homes and were forced into overcrowded tents with up to 30 relatives. As the war raged on around her, Sarah held onto the hope she found in the Bible, just as her husband once did.

As each day passed without being able to feed her children, her anxiety grew. She witnessed many mothers losing their children to starvation, and each day she prayed that God would make a way for her to feed her children before it was too late. Meanwhile, God miraculously opened a door for Impact Nations to partner with a dedicated team on the ground in Gaza, providing families with essential food supplies and clean drinking water in the midst of the crisis.

God miraculously opened a door.

When our team came to distribute food, they gave Sarah a food pack that contained enough supplies to feed everyone for two weeks, as well as giving the children some bread so that they had something to eat immediately. As he hungrily ate his first bread in days, her son told the team, "We thank God for hearing and answering our prayers, and we love the people who have given us food even though we've never seen them because they are the only ones who thought of us and gave us something to eat."

Rescue a Brick Slave

Meet Kapil

India - In the bustling heart of India, young Kapil's childhood was lost amidst the smoke and heat of a brick factory. Born into a debt-ridden family, Kapil toiled under the harsh sun, molding and carrying bricks to help repay the insurmountable debt. His days were filled with relentless labor, his laughter replaced by the rhythmic thud of bricks being stacked. Kapil's dreams seemed as distant as the horizon, buried beneath the dust and grime of the kiln.

But hope found Kapil through our 'Rescue a Brick Slave' program, that aims to rescue children from bonded labor and offer them a chance at education. When visiting the kiln, our partners were struck by the brightness in Kapil's eyes, despite the hardship he faced. Recognizing his potential, they spoke to his family, offering a lifeline—a promise of education and a brighter future. With agreement from his parents and the kiln owner, Kapil was finally allowed to leave the kiln.

Transitioning from the kiln to the classroom was not easy. Unfamiliar with education, Kapil struggled to keep up with his peers. Yet the same determination that sustained him through years of labor now fueled his academic pursuits. With dedicated mentorship and support—from school supplies to emotional counseling—Kapil began to thrive. His confidence grew, and soon his academic performance soared.

Today, Kapil excels in science and mathematics, dreaming of becoming an engineer to build structures that inspire rather than confine. His journey from the brick kiln to the classroom stands as a beacon of hope for children still trapped in similar circumstances. In fact, Kapil has begun mentoring other children rescued from bonded labor, instilling in them the hope and determination that fueled his journey.

Transformation in Action

The Kingdom Has Come To Lukka

In 2023, our partners visited Lukka, a rural Ugandan village grappling with extreme poverty, high teenage marriage rates, and very low education levels, especially for girls. Lack of education had resulted in widespread illiteracy among women, leaving them devalued and subject to frequent abuse. Something had to change.

When we learned about the plight of women in Lukka, Impact Nations and our partners jumped into action. We began by hosting a Hope Alive event—a seminar designed to empower communities by encouraging them to work together and utilize local resources. As always, the gathering also included training on recognizing and calling out the abuse of women, while equipping community leaders to provide inner-healing and offer hope to the oppressed.

The Hope Alive gathering called on the community to become possibility thinkers and take the first step toward community transformation. The response was astounding. Pastors and leaders from Lukka immediately took action, taking stock of their existing resources. Between them, they had one sewing machine and a field; plenty to get started, as far as they could tell.

Soon, using that single sewing machine and a few scraps of fabric, classes had begun underneath a large tree. Meanwhile, under the neighboring tree, young women were learning how to make liquid soap, a simple and inexpensive product that has huge demand in rural Uganda.

Months later, during a follow-up visit, we were amazed at the transformation. The program had grown exponentially, with hundreds of women now attending classes daily. Those skilled in soap-making taught others, generating income to purchase more sewing supplies and even a cow for additional revenue. The women also innovated by learning hair braiding using grass from the fields.

Inspired by their progress, we are now planning to formally establish a School of Purpose in Lukka. We've provided additional sewing machines and materials, and a local pastor has donated land for a semi-permanent building. This new campus will train 300 girls in hairdressing or tailoring, teaching them self-sufficiency and their value in the Kingdom of God.
