Dear _____

I am writing to you today to directly address something I feel incredibly passionate about. Our world is suffering, our air is unclean, our oceans are polluted and we are losing forest cover faster than we ever thought imaginable.

Our world is becoming sicker ... and we need to act.

Did you know that earlier this year the UN Environment Chief stated that humanity is placing too many pressures on the natural world and warned that failing to take care of the planet means that we are not taking care of ourselves?

Deforestation has been directly linked to the rise in zoonotic diseases. With decreasing habitats and wilderness, animals and humans are forced to live closer together. This increase in contact has seen viruses pass from species to species... Without healthy forests, our health is vulnerable.

Forests are our future. Healthy trees equal healthy me!

Lets come together to fund reforestation on a global scale and provide a viable future for generations to come. Some of us can give time, some can educate and inspire others, and many of us can make giving back to Nature normal, every single month.

I'm writing to you today to ask you to join me in donating to TreeSisters every single month. A monthly donation to TreeSisters funds the planting of tropical trees. You will be supporting ethical, community-focused tree planting across multiple tropical ecosystems. You will be making ongoing committed investment in the future of our planet and the health of our global forests.

You can donate directly at www.treesisters.org/give

Let me know if you step in, I would love to hear how this speaks to you and inspires you.

With deepest, greenest love,
