THE AMAZON

A photograph of three indigenous men, likely from the Amazon, wearing traditional headdresses made of woven straw and adorned with numerous colorful feathers in shades of red, yellow, green, blue, and white. The man on the left is looking towards the camera, while the others are slightly out of focus. They have red body paint on their faces and chests. The background is a blurred green, suggesting a forest setting.

SOCIAL INCLUSION

We plant trees with indigenous communities

SAVING
THE AMAZON

1

They receive income for the planting, photos and care.

2

They are empowered by decision making.

3

They receive forestry and organizational training.

4

Trees are providers of food, medicine and building materials.

5

They preserve their culture and beliefs around nature.

6

We create green companies.
